Dear Parents:

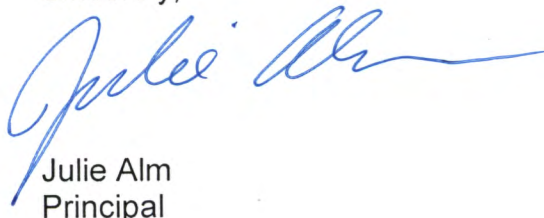

We have discovered that several children have come to school with head lice/nits in their hair. This is not unusual due to the increased contact children have when in school.

Though not a serious health risk, we must still deal with the problem aggressively to ensure the condition does not spread in our student population. Students found to have lice or nits (eggs) must be excluded from class and are not permitted to return until they are free of the infestation.

Your help and cooperation can do much to prevent the spread of head lice. We are asking that every parent take time to shampoo their child's hair and thoroughly check the scalp and hair strands for signs of head lice. Should you suspect the presence of lice, please contact the local Miami-Dade Health Department office, your physician or pharmacist for advice concerning treatment.

With everyone in our community working together we can eliminate this problem. Your support in this campaign is vital and very much appreciated.

Sincerely,

Julie Alm
Principal
